Book Review by Ann Barkla

The Unlikely Pilgrimage of Harold Fry by Rachel Joyce

I get quite excited when I “discover” a new (to me) writer.

Earlier this year, quite by chance, I came across “The Unlikely Pilgrimage of Harold Fry” by Rachel Joyce.

Rachel Joyce is a British novelist and this is her debut novel. It was shortlisted for the Man Booker prize. She was also awarded the New Writer of the Year prize.

“The Unlikely Pilgrimage of Harold Fry” follows

Harold's 600 mile walk from Knightsbridge to Berwick-on -Tweed . Harold is retired and one morning he receives a letter from his old work friend, Miss Queenie Ashton, written from a hospice where she is dying. He hasn't seen her for 20 years. Harold decides he must see Queenie before she dies. He sets out to walk from Knightsbridge to Berwick- on- Tweed, certain that Queenie won't die before he gets there. Amazing things happen to Harold as he walks to Queenie.

Having read Harold's story, I then read “The Lovesong of Miss Queenie Ashton”, which describes Queenie's anxious wait for Harold to arrive.

I would happily recommend both of these novels and the others that Rachel Joyce has written recently.

Libraries Change Lives campaign calls for support

The peak body for Victoria's 272 public libraries statewide campaign to build community support and funding for services that attract more than 30 million visits a year.

The Libraries Change Lives campaign highlights the economic and social benefits public libraries bring to Victoria. New economic modelling demonstrates that every dollar invested in public libraries generates $4.30 of benefits. Victorian public libraries change lives by offering communities a place to learn, create and belong.

From Grade 5W (St Mary's, Alexandra)

Our regular library visits have been a great opportunity for the year 5's of St Mary's Primary School, Alexandra to explore the many different resources available to us.

Every fortnight, on a Tuesday, we have been walking down to the local library to meet with Lisa and Sharon. Lisa has been running a short session for us, related to our learning topics and allowing us to review the books we have enjoyed reading.

We have found these visits very welcoming and invaluable to our learning. Lisa is always in tune with what we are learning about and gives us direction and options for further reading and research. Each visit builds on our awareness of the importance of our local library and the opportunities and support it offers our community.

We feel really grateful and privileged that our library has embraced our visits and made us feel we can drop in anytime. This has built on our connection to our local community. We belong to the library and it belongs to us.

We would like to thank Lisa and Sharon for everything they've done for us, especially the extra bonus of the warm/cold Milo's are really appreciated.
