HIGHLIGHTS THIS MONTH

Tuesday Talk – In 1948, Ben Carlin, as Australian army major, set out from New York City with an audacious plan to travel around the world in an amphibious jeep. He travelled through fierce Atlantic hurricanes, across the uncharted North African desert, into dense South-East Asian jungle and over the icy swells of the North Pacific. When Carlin finally pulled into Times Square a decade later, he found himself alone and forgotten. ‘The Last Great Australian Adventurer’ is the compelling biography of Ben Carlin’s attempt to make an enduring mark on the world during the dying days of the golden age of adventure.
